

What I have done since the last report:

I have implemented many bug fixes, most notably, multiple players are able to join a room without issue now. Additionally, I implemented better warning message handling for the users. I also implemented better tracking of the player's hand strength in the UI.

What I still need to do:

Ideally, I would transition off the free tier of the website I am using to host my backend, Render, so that users don't have to wait for the game/agents to spin up if the server goes to sleep from inactivity.

Other than that, only minor quality-of-life features remain
