

What I have done since the last report:

Most of my work was spent getting my web app hosted, though now I am happy to say it is live and can be found here:

<https://pokerface-zeta.vercel.app/>

When launching a game, if no rooms have been opened lately, there will be a one to two minute delay as the backend wakes up (I am hosting it with the free version of Render).

What I still need to do:

There is currently an issue with having multiple players connect to the same room in the web version of my app, so I need to resolve that issue.

If time allows, I also want to further improve the UI and test new agent types.